Course description :

Much of French literature presents men and women in a way that allows us to examine their relations to each other and their respective roles in society. From the middle ages to the present day these relations and roles have evolved. Through our study of the works read we will learn about how the major ideas in society have been reflected and helped to define this evolution (carpe diem, androgyny, reformation, préciosité, age of reason, romanticism, liberation des femmes).

FRE 423 and the Conceptual Framework :

This course, as is the case with all of our offerings in the ICC Department, is rooted in the ideals of liberal learning. The underlying ideal in all of our classes, whether they be literature, culture, or language based, is that all three of these elements are interwoven. The specific knowledge and perspectives that will be acquired in this class reflect SUNY Cortland's commitment to instilling in our students an acumen for themes and issues pertaining to Global Understanding (knowledge of the interconnectedness of the natural and human experience through exposure to the political, social, economic and religious differences of the target language's literature and civilization) and Social Justice (comparison and contrast of issues of social justice, equality, and democracy between our society and those of the target language).

Goals:

Be able to recognize and describe the evolution of the couple as presented in French literature and as it is reflected in society.

Attendance :

Attendance is required. One absence per credit hour will not be counted.

Written work will consist of :

Class presentations	20%
Papers : I. 2 pp., II. 4 pp., III. + IV. 5 pp.	60%
Final	20%

For papers, a page implies a full page, Times 12 point font, 1 inch margins. Essential elements of all written work are accurate grammar, good vocabulary usage, and clear structure (introduction, thesis, paragraph development, conclusion). We will work on these skills in class and for paper rewrites.
