d. Research and Writing in Progress

I continue to work with colleagues on a longitudinal study involving sense of community and sense of place among outdoor pursuits trip groups. Data collection as well as presentation and publication of results are ongoing. For the 22nd Northeastern Recreation Research Symposium, I will be presenting "Economic Impacts, Interest, and Support for a Local Tourist Train" as well as co-authoring a presentation with a graduate student ("An Examination of the Relationship between Constraints and Young Adults' Desire and Ability to use an Excursion Train as a Leisure Activity"). I have also been invited to deliver the Founders' Forum Keynote Address. Lynn Anderson and I hope to write an article based on a children and nature study we completed a couple years ago as a REC 601/602 class project. We will be analyzing parents' and children's perspectives of the children's interactions with and views of nature. I also continue to facilitate and mentor both undergraduate and graduate projects for evaluation and research classes. This year's graduate project involves a recreational needs assessment for Tompkins Cortland Community College.
