Dear all students in EDU375-604:

Thank you for working with me this semester. I never promised it was going to be an easy one, but I promised it would be worth it.

Thank you all for submitting on TASKSTREAM on time so that I could submit final grades today. The course grade you get from Banner might not exactly be the same with the WebCt course grade if you have more than two absences from the class and if you have no extra credits earned along the semester.

Some of you wrote me to show your concerns about the situation in China after a devastating earthquake hit the southeastern province of Sichuan on May 12. My family and Shufang's family live on the east coast, far away from the epicenter, but all of them are affected in different ways. Please keep the victims and rescuers in your thoughts and prayers. The world is witnessing many natural disasters and human-made catastrophies every day. When you get a chance to educate young learners, I trust you will all plan lessons on a daily basis that are going to be minds-on and hearts-on first BEFORE they are hands-on.

Because you come into my life this semester, my life is never going to be the same.

I wish you and your families a great summer. Please keep in touch.
