Lin Lin – Spring 2011

COMMENTS:

- Lin Lin was very enthusiastic and passionate about topics. The unit plan was a bit too much and was not practical even though the topics were interesting.
- I feel that this course did not touch upon course material, but I could definitely tell a lot about the Chinese culture after this course. I feel like content was not taught because of the strong focus of discussion on culture. The unit plan was unfair; the amount of work expected was not displayed in the comments.
- Making the unit plan was beneficial to see how lessons should flow together.
- I learned a lot about different methods of how to teach history. I enjoyed the class.
- I really enjoyed this class. I know things that I have learned in here will apply to my teaching.
- Lin Lin has so much knowledge and was always willing to share with others. Overall, great class.
- I really enjoyed this class. It helped me to think critically about social studies. The professor consistently encouraged us to go above and beyond.
- The length of the unit plan material was not realistic to field work. I did not mind doing work, but the detail for presentation was not clear.
- I learned a lot in this class and really enjoyed coming. The assignments will really help me when I have a class of my own.
- I enjoyed taking this class although some assignments were long and drawn out. There were a lot of activities in every class.
- This course was nothing like what I expected. I feel like all I learned was about China, you, your problems and Columbus. Don't put students down, especially in front of other classmates. This class should focus more on how to teach content.
- Lin Lin did a good job.
