Thank you , for Teaching Outside the Textbook

Dear ,

We are writing to thank you for taking the time to share your "teaching outside the textbook" story. You are one of over 80 teachers who submitted an essay. We have only 20 sets to give away and regret that your name was not selected.

However, thanks to a generous donation from Seven Stories Press you will receive a free copy of Voices of A People's History. To receive your book, please click here to provide us with the necessary information. In addition to shipping information for the book, we want to know if we have permission to share your name on the Zinn Education Project website as one of the teachers who contributed an essay and possibly quotes from your story.

If you have not done so already, you must register on the Zinn Education Project website, where you can download free teaching materials.

We are very pleased to learn about your work and would like to stay in touch with you. We will inform you of new offers as they come along, teaching activities, and news about related efforts.

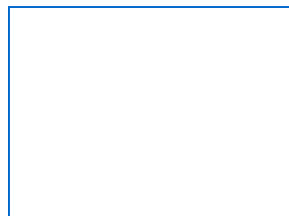

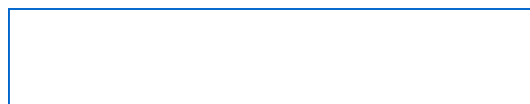

The essays we received were full of inspiring examples of how a people's history is being taught, how teachers were introduced to the work of Howard Zinn, and how students respond to learning a more complete version of U.S. history. We will stay in touch with everyone who contributed stories and post essay excerpts online.

We look forward to connecting with you in the coming months and years about the important work of teaching a people's history.

Sincerely,

Lauren Cooper and Deborah Menkart, Teaching for Change
