

Dear Educator,

Here are the Zinn Education Project bookmarks you requested. Thank you for helping us spread the word about this exciting educational initiative.

If you have not already, please be sure to register online to gain access to our free teaching materials at:

www.zinnedproject.org

Registration is completely free and is only required so that we can track use of these resources and keep you up to date on the Zinn Education Project. We will not flood your inbox with incessant emails, I promise. Also, as you pass the bookmarks out to your colleagues, students, and friends, encourage them to register as well.

Your efforts are helping to change the way middle and high school students learn about and engage with history. This is no small feat. By emphasizing the role of working people, women, people of color, and organized social movements in shaping our history, students learn that change is made not just by a few heroic individuals, but by people's choices and actions, thereby also learning that their own choices and actions matter.

No lesson is more powerful. Thank you again for your support.

Sincerely,

Jonathan B. Tucker
Administrative Assistant
Teaching for Change

PO Box 73038 Washington, DC 20056
202-588-7204 tel © 202-238-0109 fax
www.zinnedproject.org